Burglar Alarm Fails To Bring Aid To Bank

Peru, Ind., Oct. 19.—Six bandits, brandishing machine guns, sawed off shot guns, and revolvers, swept into the heart of the crowded downtown business district here Friday afternoon, shot a policeman and a pedestrian and robbed the First National Bank of approximately $50,000.

Terrorized pedestrians stampeded towards every possible cover as the robbers sent volleys of shots up and down the street to intimidate police.

Five of the robbers dashed into the bank and aimed their weapons at 10 employees and customers, ordering them to one side. The men systematically looted the vaults, cashiers' cages, and security containers.

From the street could be heard the frightened screams of women and children and the staccato spat of the machine gun as it sprayed a barrage in all directions.

One of the shots struck Policeman John Devaney in the leg. Another shattered the foot of H. L. Howenstein of Michigan City, an unwilling spectator.

Kendrick Kenny, assistant cashier, sounded a burglar alarm in the rear of the bank.

The bandits ordered all bank employees to lie on the floor.

One girl raised her head.

"Give her the black jack!" the leader bellowed.

The leader ordered Gordon Smith, cashier to open a large vault. When Smith failed he was cracked over the head with a pistol and ordered to try again. He opened the safe and was felled with another blow.

All the money that could be found was placed in three sacks and the bandits swept from the bank through a side door.

A crowd collected and again machine gun bullets splattered at the feet of the spectators.

Leaping into a high-powered automobile, the six men escaped.

Judge Orders Man To Pay Alimony

Lisbon, Oct. 19.—Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court has ordered George H. Heckathorne of Wellsville to pay back alimony to his former wife, Ruth Heckathorne, or sentence will be pronounced for contempt of court.

Heckathorne must also pay his wife $5.50 weekly for the support of his minor children who are under the order of the court are in the custody of the mother.

LILTING MELODIES OF NEGRO MAY RESULT IN RELEASE FROM PRISON

Theatrical Man Sees Possibilities in Voice Of Convict; Judge Will Stay Sentence If Bond Is Produced; Appears Tonight

Lima, O., Oct. 19.—William Watley, 28, dusky Caruso of the Allen county jail, is to be given an opportunity to sing his way out of a sentence to the Ohio State penitentiary.

Watley will be given a try-out for vaudeville.

Robert Bender, manager of a theater here, happened to walk through the passageway between the theater and the county jail.

Bender heard a voice singing in the jail. It was not the ordinary jailbird caroling. There was something in that voice, something which gripped and tugged at the heart.

Bender listened.

"Ah'm lonely, too, Sonny boy." There was a tear in the end of the song. Bender hurried up the steps to the side entrance of the sheriff's residence which adjoins the jail. Sheriff Ben S. Miller answered the caller's knock.

The theater manager inquired for the identity of the prisoner whom he heard from the alley. Watley, awaiting to be taken to the Ohio penitentiary for non-support of a minor child, was brought out of the jail and was asked to repeat his rendition of "Sonny Boy."

He did. The chords of his throat swelled as he finished the song which has been made famous by Al Jolson.

It was hard for Bender to believe that a man awaiting a term in the penitentiary could sing "Sonny Boy" with such emotion.

"Will it be all right if I take Watley across the street to the theater for a workout with the orchestra," Bender petitioned. The sheriff acquiesced.

By order of Judge Fred C. Becker of common pleas court, Watley may escape the penitentiary sentence provided someone will furnish a $500 bond that the negro will supply $5 a week for the support of his child.

No one has volunteered to establish the bond. The negro hasn't many friends.

SPREADING OF STRIKE AVERTED

Musicians, Employers In Agreement; Terms Not Known

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—Philadelphia's musician's strike is settled.

The impending nation-wide walk-out of musicians, stage hands, and other theater employees, was averted late last night when the striking musicians and theater managers reached an agreement here following a three-hour conference.

The strike had threatened to spread today to New York, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, New Haven, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and Buffalo.

The show families here, however, will not end until November 4 for that is the first date that a billing can be arranged in a local theater.

The strike extended over a ten week period. It arose out of the managers' refusal to meet the wage increases demanded by the musicians or to give them a 30-week contract thus guaranteeing them pay for weeks when the theaters might be closed. Participants in the conference refused to reveal the exact terms of the agreement but it is reported the musicians obtained an $8 weekly increase. The new contract will run until the Saturday preceding Labor day in 1930.

HOOVER NAMES STIMSON HEAD OF NAVY GROUP

Secretary of State Will Be Chairman Of Delegation

OTHERS SELECTED AT LATER DATE

Borah Indicates He Does Not Desire To Attend

Washington, Oct. 19.—The American delegation to the London Naval Conference in January is to be composed of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson as chairman, two members of the senate, a Republican and a Democrat and either two or three others who might be described as "outstanding citizens."

President Hoover now has a number of names under consideration but Stimson's is the only one definitely decided upon to date.

Naval men are to accompany the delegation, not as members, but as experts and technical advisers.

"The Admirals," as Gen. Charles G. Dawes calls them, have been found to be too inflexible for diplomatic purposes.

There is general satisfaction in the senate over Mr. Hoover's decision to include senatorial representation in the make-up of the delegation, but at the same time there is apparently no senatorial scramble for the honor of going to London.

On the contrary, there seems to be a disposition to avoid the assignment, for it obviously will be up to the senatorial delegates to sponsor through the senate whatever treaties emerge from the London gathering.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, whose position as chairman of the Foreign Relations committee and whose long and ardent championship of disarmament entitles him to preference, has already indicated to the president that he prefers to stay at home.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the majority leader, and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader, have similarly indicated they do not care to go.

ROTARY DINNER HONORS BURTON AND ANDERSON

Farewell Tribute to Two Sanitary Co. Officials Who Leave City

Charles G. Burton, who recently resigned as president and general manager of the National Sanitary company, and Robert B. Anderson, who has resigned as secretary-treasurer of the same company, were given a farewell honor at a dinner served Friday night at the Salem Golf club.

The dinner was arranged by the Rotary club and in the group of about 50 were representatives of the Manufacturers association, of which Mr. Burton had been president several years.

Mr. Anderson resigned this week as president of the Rotary club. Mr. Burton is a past president of the club.

Wilbur J. Springer, who as vice president has succeeded Anderson as Rotary president, called the group together following the dinner and presented Past President R. S. McCulloch as chairman.

He called upon several for short talks, among them Past Presidents J. S. Alan and Walter L. Strain, G. R. Deming, A. L. Metzger, George J. Bunn and B. L. Flick.

Each speaker paid tribute to the part the honored guests have taken in the industrial and civic life of Salem, and expressed regret that they are leaving the city.

In behalf of the Rotarians, Past President Ralph W. Hawley presented Burton and Anderson gifts as tokens of the friendships they have formed. Both men responded, expressing their regret at leaving Salem.

Burton left Saturday morning for Peru, Ind., to spend some time with his daughter and family. Anderson does not expect to leave Salem for a few weeks, but is planning to enter business in Chicago.

Neighbors Aid In Harvesting Crops Of Man Near Death

After the shooting of his brother, John turned a bucket full of money, which was mainly silver coins, over to Mayor H. L. Kuenzli here, the man said he did not know how much was in it, but Mayor Kuenzli said there was between $1,500 and $2,500.

The Steigers had little use for banks. The gunman who shot Jacob evidently knew of this trait of the bachelor brothers and suspected he had not obtained all of their money when he robbed them of $1,000 on Sept. 24. Robbers got $700 from the Steigers when they looted the "twin box" on a binder on the farm six or seven years ago.

Jacob will die from his wound, Physicians declared.

Over 20 American Legion posts were represented in the program which included a banquet, dedication ceremonies, parade and dance.

Wellsville Meets Salem High Today

State To Inspect Building Scaffold

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—Inaugurating a campaign designed to reduce the number of accidents resulting from faulty scaffolds, Will T. Blake, state director of industrial relations, today announced the appointment of John D. Manoly, of Barberton, as a scaffold inspector in the state division of factory and building inspection.

Manoly, 35, is a building contractor. At its last session, the Ohio legislature authorized appointment of four inspectors. Two are yet to be appointed.

"The number of accidents caused by negligence in constructing scaffolds is surprising," said Blake. "It is the plan of the state to take adequate steps, through personal inspection, with a view to preventing these as much as possible."

SEWAGE PLANT OBJECTIVE OF TRIP INTO CITY

125 State Officials And Plant Superintendents In Group

MEETING HERE IS IMPORTANT EVENT

Salem Plant Only One Of Its Type In Use In Ohio

Salem's sewage treatment plant will again occupy the center of attention in Ohio next week when more than 125 municipal disposal plant superintendents and Ohio state engineering and health officials visit here for an extensive survey Wednesday.

The visit to the treatment plant will follow a discussion on it in the third annual Ohio conference on sewage treatment at Canton Wednesday morning by F. S. Barchhoff, Salem city engineer. Barchhoff will read a paper on the Salem plant.

Throughout Ohio great interest has been shown in Salem's plant, due mostly to the fact that it is an innovation in sewage treatment and is the only plant of its type in the state.

Included in the delegation of state and city officials who will visit here will be F. H. Waring, chief engineer of the Ohio department of health; F. D. Stewart, chief assistant engineer of the state health department; Floyd G. Browne, Marion disposal plant superintendent; C. C. Hommon, superintendent of Canton's works; C. C. Curtis, mayor of Canton; Clarence B. Hoover, Columbus; Dr. Charles A. Neale, director of the Ohio state department of health, and others.

The conference will open at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday with registration of visiting officials at Hotel Northern in Canton. C. C. Hommon will be in charge of the afternoon session, the address of welcome being scheduled to be given by Mayor C. C. Curtis.

The Canton sewage treatment works will be visited immediately after the close of the morning program following which the conference will go to Alliance for a survey of the plant there. The Canton and Alliance plants comprise sedimentation and trickling filters, the latter having been placed into service this year.

Principal attention will be concentrated on the visit to Salem's plant, bulletins issued by conference officials stated this morning. This plant employs the activated sludge process, has been highly commended by state authorities and is the first of its type in use in Ohio.

Youths Fined For Stealing Chickens

Lisbon, Oct. 19.—Ray Shopper of Knox township, aged 17 years and his companion Kenneth Hahlen, 17 also of Knox township, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of petty larceny when given a hearing before Probate Judge Lodge Riddle and were fined $10 and costs each.

Holmes Burbeck, aged 20, the last of the trio was fined $50 and costs upon a plea of guilty to the same charge. The boys entered the poultry house of Ed Barges and stole 15 chickens, put them in an automobile and drove away. They were caught after a long chase by Deputy Sheriff C. E. Donahue, and after the poultry was returned to the owner, the boys were taken to Lisbon. The youths pooled the fines and costs and each paid one-third of the charge.

Farmer Is Injured; Dragged By Horse

Emmett Moore, who lives near Winona, had his left arm broken and sustained other injuries, when thrown from a horse in an accident about 2 p. m. Friday at his home.

Moore was brought to the Central Clinic hospital in Salem, Saturday morning his condition was reported favorable. At first it was feared he was internally injured.

The accident happened in the lane at Moore's home when he mounted a horse to go to a neighbor's home on an errand. The horse threw him and his foot caught in the harness and he was dragged for a distance. His wife was with him holding another horse. She called a physician and an ambulance removed Moore to the hospital.

ELIHU ROOT SPEAKS

It is three decades since President McKinley called Elihu Root from a great law practice to take over the War Department and straighten out the tangles of the Spanish-American war. Mr. Root's influence was immeasurable in those days when America was starting on a policy of imperialism.

As successor to John Hay, Mr. Root entered the State Department under the Roosevelt administration. Later, he was an adviser to President Taft and was called into conference frequently by President Wilson during the World war. When President Coolidge reopened negotiations over entrance into the World Court, Mr. Root, far on in years, was sent to Geneva to smooth the differences that the American reservations would create.

This distinguished and venerable diplomat, now an octogenarian, has a vast background of knowledge on the subject of war and international relations. Therefore, a statement which he made in New York, October 11, on the occasion of a dinner in honor of Premier MacDonald is significant.

In connection with his belief that many of the old obstacles to peaceful settlements of differences between nations have been removed, Mr. Root said, "Cannon fodder is learning how to control diplomacy."

That is something for the people to think about—all classes of them. The "superior" people are forever in a fret lest the plain people, the "cannon fodder," will substitute emotionalism for intelligence. They think that matters of state should be in the hands of the "hard headed" people, who will be deceived by nothing and will demand extra measure in every instance. It would never occur to the advocates of this hard-boiled, hit-first-for-protection policy, but it has occurred to Elihu Root, sage with the wisdom of years and several wars, that the dumbest peasant on the Continent, or the most ignorant American workman, governed wholly by emotionalism, could not have made a worse mess of affairs than the "hard-headed" did in the years preceding 1914.

Elihu Root tells the common man that his rights should mean something in diplomacy. And he tells it to a Socialist Prime Minister of Great Britain, who admits that he too sees dangers in an armament policy, as well as in a peace policy. But, just as Ramsey MacDonald, in deference to the rights of those who suffer the most, is ready to yield and try an experiment, so is Elihu Root conscious of the feelings of the "cannon fodder."

MAY GO FREE

The supreme court of the state of Michigan has decided that the final conviction of Channie Tripp, the first man to receive a life sentence for four violations of Michigan's old "life for a pint act" was invalid, and has ordered him released from state prison and returned to Genesee county for a new trial.

The decision of the supreme court brings about a peculiar situation, with the chances favoring the possibility that Tripp may escape further punishment.

Since Tripp's conviction, the Michigan liquor law has been changed. In drawing the new law, the assembly failed to provide a saving clause, making the provisions of the old law apply to violators whose offenses were committed before the new law went into effect.

Under these circumstances, Tripp can not be tried again under the old law, nor can he be tried under the new, as it was enacted subsequent to the offense of which he was convicted, and he is subject to release from custody under bail. He can not now be convicted of anything beyond an offense against the prohibition law, which will call for nothing more than the ordinary penalty.

Even should Tripp go free, he has already been punished sufficiently, for he merited punishment at all, for in the light of the recital of facts carried in the supreme court's decision the worst that could be charged against him was association with those who were in possession of liquor—his wife, his sister and three men friends—his testimony, which was uncontradicted, having been to the effect that he expostulated with his wife for serving the whiskey, and urged her to throw it away, and it was the failure of the trial court to instruct the jury to consider Tripp's version of the matter which led the supreme court to declare his conviction invalid, which should appeal to an unprejudiced mind as something in the nature of the righting of a wrong done to the defendant.

China and soviet Russia are said to have reached an agreement at the conference in Berlin and will enter into a pact to end what has been referred to at times of late as the Russo-Chinese war. If the report proves well founded, China may pride herself on being first to get the bolshevik government to agree to anything.

Al Capone, confronted with the blame for 15 murders by one of his former pistol experts, and still sitting securely in his Philadelphia jail should be about ready to admit that it really pours, when it starts to sprinkle in the Quaker City.

What Others Say

THE SOFTENING INFLUENCE

Time was, not so long past, when it was possible to escape from civilization and to sojourn among primitive he-men by taking a trip into the logging regions of the Northwest. There could be found the "hardest" human beings imaginable. Volumes have been written about them and their code. Whenever an author wanted a hard-fisted, hard-fighting hero with hair on his chest he chose a logger.

Imagine the surprise, not to mention the chagrin, of an old-time lumber-jack, who knew and lived among the briers, hook-tenders, bull cocks and loggers of another generation when he returned to the big woods for a vacation, this summer, after several years of retirement and found that the softening influence of modern civilization has invaded even those precincts.

In one "vanigan," or camp canteen, he actually found scented soap on sale. Not only that, but there were shaving powders and cosmetics and face lotions. To a man who remembers when the only face lotion that would have any effect on a logger's skin was leather oil, it was shocking beyond imagination.

Moreover, the gastronomic sensibilities of the visitor were insulted by the serving of head lettuce and shrimp salad, the whole concoction embellished with French dressing. During the meal, served by trim waitresses, the superintendent talked golf. The old logger cut short his visit and returned to the city, his mind confused and full of sorrow.

We doubt that the introduction of these luxuries will help the logging business much. It is a pursuit that demands hard men and luxuries are softening. But the saddest part of it is that, from all appearances, one of the last few remaining haunts of the primitive, he-man faces devastation. — Columbus Evening Dispatch.

THE AUTOCRAT IN PANAMA

The American effort in Panama, which changed the area adjoining the canal from one of the worst fever spots in the world to one of the most healthful places known to man, was a herculean achievement which to be maintained has required an equally herculean vigilance. Every pall of water is a potential breeding place for malaria and every improperly constructed shack is a possible source of bubonic plague. Moreover, the population in the zone and in Panama City, which adjoins the zone, is very mixed, containing representatives of almost every race in the world, and has scant understanding of the importance of sanitation.

If the Canal Zone is to be fit for human habitation, the health regulations must be obeyed. There can simply be no argument on that point. This means that the health officer must have absolutely dictatorial powers. If he finds a pall of water without a cover, he now fines the guilty housewife $10, and she has no appeal to any court. If a house is not of the proper "rat-proof" construction, the doctor can have the house torn down, and no one can say him nay. If the proud ocean liner or the biggest foreign battleship tie up at a Canal Zone wharf and neglect to put galvanized iron "rat guards" on its hawse, the captain of the vessel must pay a large fine and no amount of argument will help him.

This is a good system, which has made the Canal Zone a model of the world over. One of the doctors charged with enforcing it has been accused of inefficiency, and the war department is going to investigate the charges. It is to be hoped that when the Assistant Secretary of War Mr. Murky makes his investigation he will distinguish between the individual who happens to be health officer and the system under which that officer is supposed to operate. He may be urged to annul some of the powers which the health officers in Panama now have. It would be most unfortunate if he took such advice. Let him take what action he pleases with regard to the individual doctor, but let him remember that without autocratic control it is well nigh impossible to keep the zone as healthful as it certainly ought to be. — New York Herald-Tribune.

Per capita consumption of electric current in Germany has increased about fourfold in fifteen years.

MEN'S WEARDIGESTIVE TROUBLES
CAUSE OF INSOMNIA

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

(United States Senator from New York)

If you can't sleep there will be plenty to tell you "it's your conscience bothering you." That may be so in some cases but I doubt that this is universally so.

Insomnia is a common complaint. There may be occasions when a true wholesome conscience is responsible for it. In most cases, it may be traced to some mental, intestinal or digestive disorder.

To my mind there is no more distressing condition than inability to sleep or disturbed sleep. All the disagreeable and disappointing events of the day or week pass and repass in rapid review during the long night hours. The problems of tomorrow seem to grow bigger and bigger. Any aches or pains you may have forgotten during the day become unbearable. So with thoughts like these for companions during the sleepless hours, you become entirely unfitted for the work of the morning.

To enjoy good health one must have plenty of sleep and good nourishing food served at regular intervals. To this must be added exercise, diversion and agreeable social contacts.

Few people after reaching middle age can eat late suppers without suffering some ill effects. Indigestion, heartburn, insomnia and constipation are all apt to result.

I really believe that most cases of insomnia are due to digestive disturbances. If you will sit down and take account of your own experiences you will agree with me.

Ask yourself these questions: Did you eat your dinner at a late hour? Was the food excessively rich? Did you eat a second portion of that delicious dessert? Did you drink too strong tea or coffee just before retiring? Have you given your mind a rest and change of thought? Did you go to bed while still seething from some outburst of temper? What about the condition of the bowels?

These are a few of the things to think about. Some persons read wild detective or murder stories and wonder why they do not sleep.

Insomnia is usually the result of improper care of the body functions. To be sure, there are many cases due to more serious causes. Long continued illnesses mental and nervous breakdowns all have insomnia as a symptom. But today I am concerned with the simple case.

Lack of exercise and the living of a sedentary life have the same result. Mental work done late into the night makes it difficult to calm the mind and body for sleep.

A glass of warm milk or cocoa, beef tea or malted milk often has a soothing effect. A tepid bath followed by a brisk rub is also good. Review your habits and correct those that need it. Not only will you sleep better, but you will live longer.

The Stars Say —

For Sunday, October 20

Sunday's horoscope holds favorable presage for affairs of church and philanthropy, but generally the ideal operations are of secondary importance. The mind may be directed to introspection or mystical ideals, but the pen should be wielded with care.

Those whose birthday it is are not promised a very lively year, albeit the affairs will run in fairly favorable grooves financially. It would be well to be careful with writings and not to be actuated by distorted or chaotic ideas.

A child born on this day may have a mind of introspective or nebulous quality, which may prove difficulties unless it be discreetly managed. Writings may be the cause of trouble, but the financial prospects are fair.

Apt words have power to rouse the tumults of a troubled mind. — Milton.

For Monday, October 21

The stellar mutations for this day make for a very lively state of affairs in business as well as in purely personal affiliations. There may be a desirable change following a disruption in employment. Also there may be treachery or difficulty with large corporations. But writing, publicity and social or feminine affairs should thrive and offer this menace.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a very lively and interesting year, with desirable change, possibility attending loss of employment or trouble with a corporation or secret agreement. Writings should flourish and personal matters thrive.

A child born on this day may be brilliant, with fine intellectual and social accomplishments. Its genius and originality should assist it to high place where it would be better qualified than in employment. Whoever fears God fears to sit at ease. — Mrs. Browning.

The quickening pace of creative science now moves so swiftly that a single year brings progress that would have once required decades of patient research. For, available to the inventor of our day is the vast deposit of scientific lore that has accumulated from the discoveries of his predecessors.

The citadels of Undiscovered Knowledge have yielded up their treasures less stubbornly once the main portals were unlocked. It remained for a few great pioneers to chisel out the master keys—Newton, Darwin, Pasteur, Watt and Haladay; Steinmetz, Edison and their kind.

Through his invention of the first practical incandescent lamp on the 21st night of October in 1879, Thomas Edison swung wide the portal of Electricana. The magnificent additions of Edison's contemporaries to this key discovery serve only to magnify his achievement. ## DEBENTURE TO FORM TOPIC OF SENATE DEBATE

Both Sides Claim To Have Won Victory Over Foe

TARIFF'S FATE IN DOUBT TILL VOTE

Passage Under Plans Might Draw Veto From Hoover

Washington, Oct. 19.—The Democratic-Insurgent Republican coalition faced its supreme trial in the senate battle to dictate tariff legislation today in a fight to attach the export debenture plan as a "rider" to the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Bill.

Both factions claimed victory as the senate began debating the proposal under an agreement to reach a final vote at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Victory for the debenture advocates, it was predicted, would either entirely transfer tariff making to the hands of the coalition or kill the bill. Administration Republicans declared that defeat of the debenture would assure a tariff bill modeled on the high protection theory.

Despite the fact that the senate previously by a narrow margin voted to include the debenture plan in the $500,000,000 farm relief bill, only to yield to house opposition, lines were drawn so closely that the result apparently will remain in doubt until the final roll call.

The debenture proposal, presented by Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, is not only backed by the "farm bloc" but by powerful leaders of the Democratic opposition to the Smoot bill, including Senator Robinson of Arkansas, minority floor leader.

Senator Smoot (R) of Utah, chairman of the Senate Finance committee and leader of the administration forces fighting the proposal, was confident that he would gain the votes of several Republicans who flirt with the "farm bloc" but come from states where there is a strong demand for tariff protection.

Passage of a tariff bill including the debenture plan, it was declared by administration leaders, would draw a veto from President Hoover. The chief executive has consistently denounced the plan as a measure of farm relief.

Under the Norris amendment the export debenture plan would be invoked by the newly organized federal farm board "whenever the board finds it advisable, in order to carry out the policy declared in one of the agricultural marketing act."

Debentures would be issued by the treasury to cooperative farm organizations and other exporters equal to one-half the duty on the exported article, except in the case of cotton on which there is no tariff, debentures would be issued at the rate of two cents a pound.

Police Dog Discovers Brutal Murder

Through the discovery of the body of Agnes Johnson (lower left) by "Spike," a dog owned by Chief of Police Charles Sullivan, one of the most brutal murders ever perpetrated in West Chicago, Ill., was brought to light. Following the dog's discovery of Miss Johnson's still form, detectives arrested and held for the murder John B. Preston (inset above), who, it is understood, confessed that he had strangled the girl when she resisted his advances. Preston, who is a married man, took Miss Johnson and her cousin, Matilda Murphy, to Hansen's roadhouse (above), on the outskirts of West Chicago. According to Miss Murphy he started to drink moonshine whiskey and became very anxious. The girls insisted that he take them home. He did take Miss Murphy to her house and it appears afterwards drove off with Miss Johnson. She was never seen alive again.

Art Student Crosses Sea On Three Dollars; Now Detained

New York, Oct. 19.—Cunard officials were somewhat abashed and decidedly non-committal today over the exploit of Frederick Freeman of Kingston, N. M., who boldly crossed the Atlantic on the liner Aquitania without a ticket, but enjoyed all the comforts of a first-class passenger just the same.

After studying art in Paris for four years, Freeman decided to go back to the "states." He only had three dollars but that didn't deter him.

He spent the three dollars wisely by treating prosperous-looking voyagers to drinks at the beginning of the voyage so they felt obligated later on. With calm self-assurance he ordered the best possible fare at forded in the smoking room and thus kept away from the dining room where his status might have been questioned.

He exchanged anecdotes for drinks, played deck tennis and other sports and was invited to tea on the bridge.

His one and only shirt gave him away in the end. It became dirtier and dirtier until skeptical bar-tenders decided it was time to find out whether he could pay tips, he owed them.

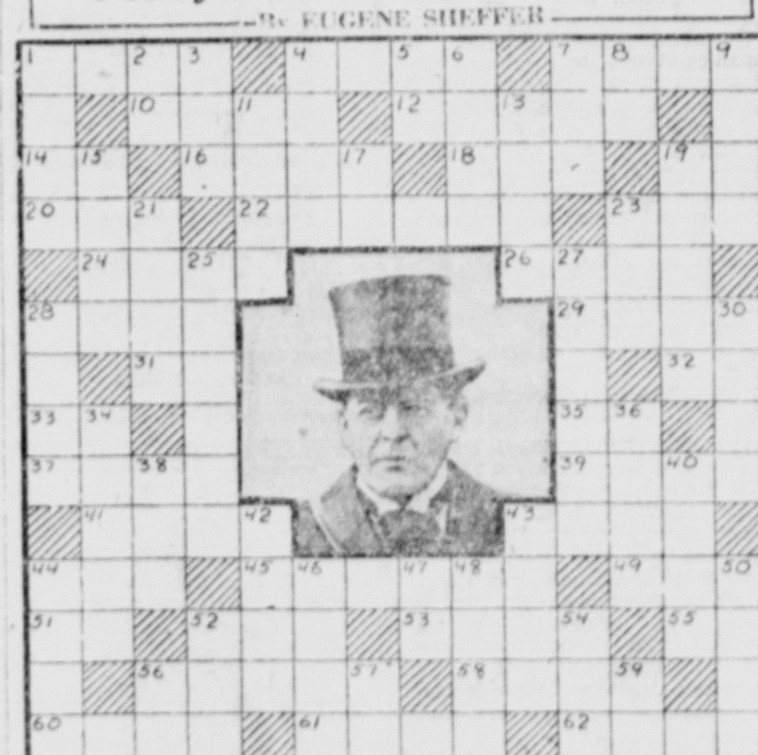

On the last day out, he was discovered sleeping in the only locker on the hurricane deck big enough to hold a man. He is being held on Ellis Island confident that some one will come to his aid and identify him as an American citizen.

FARM METHODS HIT IN SPEECH

Distribution of Products Termed Wasteful By Arthur M. Hyde

Ames, Iowa, Oct. 19.—While America's 6,000,000 farmers are the most efficient, the distribution of farm products is to a large extent wasteful and inefficient. Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde told the American country life conference today.

"The market for agricultural products are, with few exceptions, buyers' markets," he said. "What chance of success would the manufacturer of automobiles, cash register or any other industrial product, have if this output had to sell at the factory door to the best bidder, or had to pass through many middlemen before it reached the consumer? And yet, with some few exceptions, this is exactly what happens to farm products."

"The modern organization of business and industry has complicated and enlarged the problems of agriculture. Organization has taken over every industry except agriculture. Competition in industry is no longer between individuals, but between organizations. Labor is organized. Agriculture alone interposes against the competition of powerful organizations the barest of its individual producers."

Referring to the work of the federal farm board Hyde said that in seeking solutions of farm questions, the board was to a large extent blazing new trails.

Surprise Checkups Find Auto Defects

Hartford, Oct. 18.—Surprise checkups of motor vehicles on Connecticut highways found defective safety equipment on 65 per cent of the cars. Brakes in bad condition reached to 62 per cent of cars examined, while 30 per cent were without some item of equipment required by law.

As a result the state police are to keep on inspecting the cars individually. Car owners whose equipment is defective are given two weeks to have repairs made, and in the first test period very few ran over the time limit.

STYLE EDICTS

Paris, Oct. 19.—Just where will be the winter waistline? This is the all-important question smart women are asking the French dress-makers upon their return from summer holidays.

It does not seem to stay put these days. One designer has the waist around the top of the hips and breaks the neckline with a flounce as he shows it in an ensemble of heavy wools. Still another sponsors the normal spot for the waistline with a black broadcloth skirt and tuck-in blouse of voile.

One maker leaves the position of the waistline around the hips, and features the straight line and not the fitted silhouette. He is showing a black georgette frock with pleated flounces set low on the skirt which shows little variation from the straight line of last season, this is the one which is most becoming to most women and the one they really prefer.

For moving clothes, the higher waistline finds many sponsors who make lovely tailored things and make a high waistline at the front of a tuxedo coat in illustrations which continue to form a martingale at the back.

A leading house marks the normal waistline by a belt on a charming frock in shiny zibeline cloth employing the dull and shiny finish for trimming and another puts it above two little hip pockets on a wool mixture of navy, red, yellow and white wool mixture with red and white and white linen vest.

THE HOME KITCHEN
—By Jeannette Young Norton—

Grapes are of two varieties, the most of us—the white or the bluish purple. As a matter of fact, there are over 100 varieties grown in the United States, and in Europe, where grapes mean wine and not fruit, there are even more.

In our own markets we are receiving a greater variety than in previous years when there were more difficult to ship. There is the Thompson seedless grape—a pale green that is almost white and very sweet. Too sweet for some are the Malagas, which are larger than the seedless variety. For flavor, the Tokays and the Concord grapes are probably the most popular. The slight acidity and a certain faintly pungent fragrance that characterizes these varieties distinguish them as particularly desirable for jellies, juice or as a delicacy for the table.

Although grapes are always sold by the pound, the way to get a tempting array is to buy by the bunch. Select a bunch that is plump, but not so heavy that it is likely to break under its own weight. Let the marketman select culls and ends of bunches that will make up the quantity desired. A perfect bunch of grapes is beautiful and decorative, and if brought this way there are fewer falling grapes than when several little bunches are obtained.

Grapes should be washed quickly after purchased, drained on a bit of clean cheesecloth or a soft napkin, and then placed in the icebox where they will be kept chilled, but not moistened. Grapes have a high food value and one of the foods recommended for eating between meals. Indeed, a glass of pure grape juice unadorned with additional sugar or carbonated water, is a refreshing as well as nourishing food—so much so that it should not be taken as a drink with other food.

However, a few of the white grapes added to fruit cup at the beginning of a meal or with a salad improve the flavor of the dish. Large grapes must be used, as they are more palatable when peeled and the seeds removed. They must be chilled until just before serving. When used for salad pile a small mound of peeled and seeded grapes on lettuce leaves or endive and serve with a French dressing in which lemon juice has been mixed with the oil instead of vinegar.

Grapes can be preserved in a variety of ways so that one can enjoy the delicious flavor all the year round. There is, of course, the essence—unfermented grape juice. Where grapes are cheap and plentiful it pays to make it, because good commercial brands command a good price. The Government issues a very complete and detailed account of how to make unfermented grape juice in the home. It is of course necessary to have suitable equipment—such as a grape crusher which will crush a bushel of grapes in a minute if there is a large quantity to be handled, or otherwise simpler home equipment—filters, buckets, jelly bags, measuring devices, a boiler for pasteurizing, and so on. Like other fruits, grapes must be handled carefully with reference to temperature, sterilization and quantities, so as to prevent spoilage.

If only a small amount of grapes are available they can be used as flavoring. A gallon of sliced apples can be beautifully grape flavored by the addition of one pint of grape juice. Cook the apples, then strain and add the grape juice; also one cup of brown sugar and one-quarter of a teaspoon of salt. Cook over a slow fire for two hours, stirring frequently. If it is not thick enough by that time cook a little longer.

In the Churches

Church of Our Saviour, 227 McKinley ave. Rev. Christian A. Roth, pastor.

Services Sunday October 20th the Twenty-first Sunday after Trinity.

Celebration of the Holy Communion 7:30.

Church school 9:30.

Morning prayer and sermon 11.

Yesterday, Oct. 18, was the feast of St. Luke the evangelist, also called the Beloved Physician. Let us think of him for a moment or two.

St. Luke was according to tradition a resident of Antioch during the time of the ministry of St. Paul and Silas, and was converted to Christianity there. He was probably of Gentile extraction, as is shown by the purity of his Greek and the fact that St. Paul did not class him with those of the circumcision. St. Paul calls him the Beloved Physician, and there are many incidental touches, both in the Acts, which bespeak the mind of one versed in medical science and with a medical man's point of view. He was the close companion of St. Paul's missionary journeys, joining him apparently when he began his preaching in Europe after the vision of the man of Macedonia. It is pleasant to think of him as ministering to the physical needs of the great apostle afflicted with "the thorn in the flesh." He accompanied St. Paul to Rome during his first imprisonment, sharing the perils and adventures of the memorable voyage, and there was at least one period in the second imprisonment when St. Luke was the sole solace of his master's captivity.

There are no other direct references to him in the New Testament. He is universally accepted as the author of the Third Gospel and of the Acts of the Apostles. These indicate him as a man of tenderness and with wide human truth associated with his friend St. Paul, viz. the universality of the Gospel free grace and salvation for all men on a basis of justifying faith in a crucified Saviour, the power of the indwelling Spirit, and the great stimulant to holy living found in the service of the Church, and his wholesome medicines, and by these today we are healed through the merits of the Son of God.

First Baptist, where Lincoln crosses Main. A. C. Westphal, pastor.

"Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." This was an exhortation to Christians. In it was a warning, a command, an appeal, and a challenge. This represents the heroism of the Christian life. If you have never adventured with God, do a reckless thing, meet His challenge, with the other Christians on the Lord's Day in some church.

Bible school at 9:45 a. m. Robt. P. Vickers, Supt.

Morning worship at 11 a. m. Subject, "The Biggest Family On Earth." The pastor will also give to the children a lesson on the same subject.

The Senior and Intermediate B. Y. P. U.'s will meet at 6:30 in their respective rooms.

Evening services at 7:30. Subject, "The Grasshopper and Giant."

The most popular thing about these services is the gospel. If you like this kind of a meeting, you will not be disappointed. Special music, and variety singing are always features.

Monday night the School of Missions will begin. Forty-five are enrolled. The Young People will be in a separate class. We have books for five more; request them. Teachers will alternate. Mrs. Frank Bruders will have the Young Peoples class, and the pastor will teach the others. Monday night. Assignment pages 5 to 58.

Prayer service Wednesday night. Attendance was down to 46 last week. Let's meet that challenge of 100. Bring your Bibles.

Holy Trinity English Lutheran. McKinley Ave. at Woodland Ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor.

Twenty-first Sunday after Trinity.

Sunday school 9:45 (2 Thessalonians 3:6-12). J. A. Fehr, Supt.

Work and labor are placed in the world by a kind and thoughtful Creator. By the example of Christ, there is a dignity to useful work that must never be forgotten. The church if rightly judged, is a staple friend to the hosts of those who labor for their daily bread.

Morning worship 11:00. Sermon: "First—Hand Faith." There is a background to every one's faith. We look to Christ as our loving Savior, because from early childhood Christian instruction has been mature than we, has testified about the Christ. It is a stronger faith, when we have felt the witness of Christ in our own hearts.

Luther League 6:30. "The Sunday evening devotional topic is, 'How to be Useful.'" Miss Mirtie Ross is the leader.

Choir rehearsal at the church, Friday evening.

Instruction in the Catechism, Saturday morning at 9 a. m.

Time for the Truth

WASHING MACHINES

Too many half-truths and untruths about washing machines have been advertised in recent years.

For instance, the claim that clothes can be kept white week after week without soaking and boiling them, and by running them through only ONE sud.

Did our grandmothers put dirty clothes in scalding water? The truth is that no washing machine ever made can keep clothes PERMANENTLY free from "that all-over grayish tinge" and that "harsh feel" except by (1) the use of "two successive suds," or (2) by soaking and boiling the clothes, or (3) by the use of caustics or bleaches.

Of these three methods, only one is really satisfactory — namely, the "two successive suds" method which is advocated by Good Housekeeping Institute and possessed by Dexter's Fastwin. Yes, we have single washers! Who wants one after using the New Improved Fastwin? Can sell a single washer with ironing machine included, for less than $160.

For women who are willing to do the extra work which is necessary with any single-tub washer, in order to keep clothes free from grayness, the Dexter Company builds the Dexter Speedex.

Ohio State Eleven Battles Michigan In Important Big Ten Fray

Salem Fans Journey To Ann Arbor Stadium To Witness Crucial Game

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 19.—Thousands of football-mad fans were speeding in Pullmans, by automobile, by airplane and many were even "thumbing" transportation today, enroute to the big game at Ann Arbor where Coach Samuel Willaman's surprising Ohio State eleven clashes with the University of Michigan, this afternoon.

This contest is expected to be the grid classic of the midwest today, but to Sam Willaman it will be more than a mere football game. For through it he will discover the strength of his Scarlet and Grey gridders and will know, after the final whistle has resounded through the gigantic Wolverines stadium just where his team will stand in the Big Ten race.

Neither Michigan or Ohio is given a great chance to cop honors in the conference. The Maize and Blue of the midwestern university lost a dope-upsetting affair to the Purdue machine last Saturday and is considered to be practically eliminated. Because his team won a 7-6 victory over Iowa, Willaman's aggregation is given a chance to trim Michigan but it gives every promise that today's affair will be one of the closest and most fiercely contested in their historic rivalry, which dates back to 1897.

It will be the 26th annual meeting of the Buckeyes and Wolverines and since 1916 the series stands six to four in favor of Michigan for previous to that date hostilities had been interrupted by the war. Ten Salem fans have purchased tickets, having ordered them weeks ago but the only way a potential spectator will be able to buy his way into the park today will be to pay one of the scalping profiteers an enormous sum for duets.

It will be a clash between two coaches at the head of their respective grid squads for the first time. Willaman, formerly of Salem and Harry Kipke are the men, the duo that will be the two most worried principals in the football park.

There is every possibility that in addition to Willaman representing Salem at the classic, there will also be a local product in action on the field. Charles Byron Coffee, scintillating open-field runner who has been handicapped by injuries all season, came back last week to tear through the scrubsters for gain after gain and will very likely start. It was Coffee who led the Ohio State aggregation in its campaign on the gridiron against Michigan last year, who played a starring game through out and helped greatly to annex for State a 19-7 victory.

Both the Royal and State theaters have high-class bills scheduled during the coming week while Manager Virgil Rakestraw of the latter playhouse announced the attracting for a series of Hollywood's greatest productions for future runs.

Movie random will have little to choose between in either of the two theaters next week. Manager Scheffeld of the Royal announces 'College Love' a sensational modern-life affair for the opening four days of the week, while two touted productions are the center of attraction at the State.

CHARITY MAY GET LOTTERY MONEY

Cleveland Police Plan To Force Sponsors To
'Donate' Profits

Cleveland, Oct. 19.—Lottery racketeers who were enriched to the extent of $40,000 as a result of police seizure of approximately $100,000 worth of tickets and stubs on the Cambridgehire derby, may have to 'donate' their profits to Cleveland charity.

While Cleveland authorities were bending their efforts to this end today in the hopes of protecting subscribers to the lottery, Benjamin Camra, 43, and Charles Rose, 39, both of Cleveland, were scheduled to be arraigned in police court on charges of promoting schemes of chance. Lottery stubs for the famous Canadian derby were found boxed and ready for shipment in their houses.

Messages from the Army and Navy Veterans' Association in Canada, sponsors of the lottery sale, said if genuine duplicates would be placed in the draw there, every pre-interest of subscribers. Authorities here have asked Rose and Camra to turn the money over to the city for donation to charity. The men declined to take action, however, until they had consulted their attorneys.

Seizure of the Cambridgehire lottery stubs was the first of two lottery cleanups here yesterday. A raid late yesterday resulted in the seizure of 10,000 bank clearance tickets and the arrest of John Gold, 35, of Cleveland Heights.
